Exclusive Mariah Carey & Nick Cannon WEDDING VOWS RENEWAL!
They Belong Together

On a jaunt to the Maldives, the pop diva and her husband once again tell each other "I'll Be There"

TOUCH MY BODY
Carey and Cannon (in a Balendaga sort) chose to renew their vows in the Maldives because "we both love exotic places and traveling together," she says. The ceremony was presided over by a minister under a floral arch. "It was just romantic," Carey says.

VISION OF LOVE
Carey liked the neckline and simplicity of this Roberto Cavalli dress. She wore a sheer veil over her naturally curly hair. "At the last minute, I said, 'Oh, I'll wear a veil,'" she says. "Why not? You're getting married!"

ONE SWEET DAY
"Usually I'd get a more elaborate cake," says Carey of the heart-acknowledged tradition. "But this was a really nice one."

When singer Mariah Carey wed America's Got Talent host Nick Cannon in 2008 at her house in the Bahamas, they promised to renew their vows every year. For their first anniversary they flew five friends to the One & Only Reethi Rah resort in the Maldives. As a gift, Cannon, 29, gave Carey, 40, three custom rings to match her original pink diamond engagement one, but that wasn't the only step up. "The first time, everybody was nervous. We didn't tell anybody, and I got there late, as usual," says the singer, who co-stars in Precious. "But the second time, on this sandbar in the ocean, everything was incredible." The couple are already planning next year's ceremony with even more friends at their new Bel-Air mansion. —MARSHALL HEYMAN

ALWAYS BE MY BABY
"I don't really eat cake, but I had a very small piece that night," says Carey. Cannon, however, is another story. "He can eat whatever he wants."
